A screenshot of a web browser showing the end of a test. The page has a white background with a dark blue header in the top left corner that says "Section 1 of 1". In the top right corner, there is a dark blue vertical bar with the word "password" written in white. The main content area is centered and contains the text "End of your test" in bold. Below this, there is a smaller line of text: "The compliance team will review your test session. If you have any comments then please enter them in the box below, otherwise click on 'Finish section'." There is a large, empty rectangular text input box below the text.
